Dr. Simon Flexner,

The Rockefeller Institute,

66th Street and Avenue A., New York City.

My dear Dr. Flexner:

I am very glad to know from Dr. Fitzgerald, the Director of our Antitoxin Laboratory and of our Department of Hygiene, that you have intimated that you would come to the opening of our new laboratories on Thursday, October 25th, and would deliver an address in the University that night on "The War Activities of the Rockefeller Institute". I do not need to tell you that we greatly appreciate your kindness in being willing to come, and we anticipate your visit with great pleasure.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

President's Office

October 15th, 1917

Dear Sir or Madam:

It is expected that Dr. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute of New York, who is to visit the University in connection with the opening of the Connaught Laboratories on Thursday, October 25th, will deliver a lecture in Convocation Hall at 8:30 that evening on the "War Activities of the Rockefeller Institute". You and your friends are cordially invited to attend.

Yours sincerely,

R. A. Falconer

President.

November 1st, 1917.

Dear Dr. Flexner:

I hope that by this time you will have received a cheque from the Bursar of the University covering your expenses. Will you allow me again to thank you for your kindness in coming and to state anew that we appreciated very highly your visit and the lecture that you gave in the evening ? You will be glad to know that there is every probability of good practical results from your lecture in the way of our attempting to manufacture the antitoxin the story of which you set before us in the evening.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
